“ I'm going to miss the most of all about Mama, she always made me feel good. She told me I was her angel. She told me I had a way to make her worst days seem so much better. She could be upset about something and we would talk, she told me, "You're my angel." She almost lost me through her pregnancy and a couple of times in my first year of life. We could just be visiting or taking her to a doctor's appointment. She would look at me with this sweetest look in her eyes and tell me, "You are so beautiful," and I would tell Mama, "I look like you." Now, Mama, you are my beautiful angel. Mama, I love you to heaven and back.

Those were some sweet memories. I loved going with her to sell Avon. She didn't drive, so we would walk to customers' houses, and it could be many, many blocks. Some of those customers became very close friends.
