“ I would like to give my condolences to the family on behalf of my family.

My mom just happened to think about him today, as people often do when they reminisce upon the past. She was curious how he was doing, and I came upon his obituary searching for him.

My mom knew of him through her ex-husband and my father, Donald Streit. Don and him were close friends. They served together in the Marines during Vietnam, they worked together in law enforcement, and they even lived together at one point. Don passed away back in 2011 at 65 years old. According to my mom, Don and Mike were flip sides of the same coin which is probably why they got along so well. I bet they're getting into mischief together up in heaven.

My mom also remembered him fondly. When she'd visit Don when Don and Mike lived together, she remembered how he loved making Hormel Black Label Bacon and eggs for breakfast. Had to be Black Label and no other bacon brand. She also remembered him as a gregarious man that would talk and make friends with anyone. They also went to the police academy together, but he was in the class right before hers.

It saddened her to hear about his loss. He was a good friend. On behalf of my late father and my mother, again our deepest sympathies.
