“ I will miss you Patricia you were like a sister to me and you were a very very good friend. Yes I will miss you. I wish I could send money to help but it's hard to live on a fixed income.

“ The only memory I really have of Patricia is from Michelle's baby shower for Heaven. Mama and I got there and Michelle instantly put necklaces with fake pacifiers around our necks, telling us we couldn't say the word "baby", and, if we did and were caught, the person who caught us would get to take our necklace, and if we caught someone else saying it, we'd get to take theirs. (Whoever had the most necklaces at the end of the shower would win a prize.) I was SURE EVERYONE at the shower was going to be trying AS HARD AS POSSIBLE to NOT say "baby," but boy was I wrong. We had only been there for about 15 or 20 minutes when I saw Michelle point at her mom and then take her necklace. (I hadn't heard Ms. Bell say "baby" AT ALL!) But, from THERE, the game got harder, because I'm a creature of habit. Almost INSTANTLY, Ms. Bell said (to someone at the shower) "What kind of baby milk does your baby drink?" She said that and just DIED laughing, adding "I can say it AS MUCH AS I WANT to NOW." My mother followed her lead and got rid of her necklace the same way, but, as I said, hearing them say the word "baby" made it even harder for ME to not say the word. (By the way, just in case you're wondering, neither Michelle nor I - who both had 2 necklaces - won the game. Another guest ended up with 3 necklaces, and she won. I don't know what the prize was.)
