“ Grandpa Brantley was such a sweet man. When I was a child, he would come to every one of my dance recitals. He showed up for all of his grandchildren and children. My brother Joe had grandpa cheering in the stands at all of his baseball games. Even if Joe was in the outfield just playing in the dirt. He loved to spend time with us. He taught me how to shuffle a deck of cards and do the bridge trick with them at one of our lake family vacations. He took care of Joe and I when our parents worked. He would let us drive down the hills behind his house with the little Tike red car. I would catch frogs on his patio at night. He told me I would get warts the next day every time. I always checked that following morning to see if I got them. Joe and I loved to play in grandpa's extra den on his computer the pinball and bubble shooter game. The computer was right beside a large grandfather clock we always thought was cool. When we were done playing, we would go in the living room where grandpa was snoozing in his recliner. He enjoyed us, and we loved him. We always will. Rest east grandpa Brantley. We will meet again one day.
